Public Law 81-28
81th Session

March 12, 2014
[S. B. 81-30]

An Act

Allowing for the Issuance of Presidential Proclamations

Whereas, in most all forms of government, the Office of the President has the authority to issue proclamations, or opinions of the Office of the President.

Whereas, the Senate has the power to issue opinions in the form of Resolutions, the ability to issue a proclamation is an important part of checks and balances in a government;

Whereas, currently the Office of the President does not have authority to issue proclamations within the context of the Statutes of the Associated Students;

Be it enacted by the Senate of the Associated Students,

Under SAS 2.201.01 a new subsection "j" should be created, this subsection will read, "Shall have the power to issue proclamations, or opinions of the Office of the President."
